risk assessment, we can reduce or remove the upstream C-pylon and the downstream C-pylon with a larger width for the entire dam. Regarding the seismic protection systems of the dam itself, a variety of measures can be considered for construction, inspection, and maintenance of the dam.
In South Korea, two types of rehabilitation facilities are used for the rehabilitation of dams: full-scale and half-scale. These rehabilitation facilities are operated by the Ministry of Land, Infrastructure and Transport of South Korea. Among the rehabilitation facilities in Korea, the full-scale facility is operated by the Ministry of Land, Infrastructure and Transport, and the half-scale facility is operated by the Ministry of Land, Infrastructure and Transport, and the Ministry of Defense. The dams constructed before 1990 (5 dams) have been rehabilitated by the Ministry of Land, Infrastructure and Transport using the full-scale rehabilitation facility. The dams constructed after 1990 (17 dams) have been rehabilitated by the Ministry of Land, Infrastructure and Transport using the half-scale facility.[@B12] The different cases in these two facilities are based on the seismic design and period of construction. For example, the full-scale facility is good at inspecting the dam, while the half-scale facility is good at inspecting the dam, but is not as good at inspecting the foundation of the dam. The evaluation of the seismic protection system of the dam should be done using the full-scale rehabilitation facility and the half-scale facility based on a seismic risk assessment. The full-scale rehabilitation facility of the dam in South Korea does not support inspection of the foundation structure; therefore, for cases where the foundation structure is needed to be inspected, we suggest using a specialized foundation inspection company. CONCLUSION ===== We studied the factors that need to be considered when a seismic risk assessment is made for Sustained antagonism of the efferent renal nerves is feasible after nephrectomy in conscious dogs. The aim was to determine if the inhibition of the efferent renal nerves could be maintained during physiological challenges and to compare the attenuating effect of a single dose of alpha-chloralose or pentobarbital on the magnitude of the inhibition. Efferent renal nerve activity and mean arterial pressure (MAP) were recorded in eight conscious dogs before and after 7 days of nephrectomy and after i.v. injection of either alpha-chloralose (0.2-1.0

g kg⁻¹) or pentobarbital (0.08-0.12 g kg⁻¹) following the same protocol. On days -7 and 0, the mean afferent renal nerve frequency was 33 +/- 8 and 29 +/- 6 (SE) pulses min⁻¹ respectively (P If you're new here, you may want to subscribe to our newsletter.
